County Proposes ARPA Funding to Provide Broadband Services to Residents in Least Connected Communities

As part of its long-term strategy for digital inclusion, Cuyahoga County is proposing to contract with local nonprofit PCs for People to provide in-home, high-speed internet access to roughly 25,000 Cuyahoga County residents located in the County's least connected communities. The proposed $20 million contract would build a fixed wireless network that can support approximately 20,000 suburban households where more than 20% of the population is unconnected and the average income is below Cuyahoga County's Area Median Income.
