5. SERVICES, TIME FRAMES AND RATES

A. Description of Services: Core Components of Family-Based Services:

The National Resource Center On Family-Centered Services and Permanency Planning consider the following to be the essential components of family-based services or family-centered practice in child welfare.

1. The family unit is the focus of attention:

Family-centered practice works with the family as a collective unit ensuring the safety of the children and the well-being of the family.

2. Strengthening the capacity of families to function effectively is emphasized:

The primary purpose of family-centered practice is to strengthen the family’s potential for carrying out their responsibilities.

3. Families are engaged in designing all aspects of the program policies and services:

Family-centered practitioners collaborate with families to use their expert knowledge throughout the decision- and goal-making processes and provide individualized, culturally responsive, and relevant services for each family.

4. Families are linked with more comprehensive, diverse, and community based networks of supports and services:

Family-centered interventions assist in mobilizing resources to maximize communication, shared planning, and collaboration among the several community and/or neighborhood systems that are directly involved with the family.

The families that are served through family preservation services may require both traditional therapies and non-traditional services. Services provided to the family are both intensive and short term. The purpose of the program is to stabilize the situation, provide the clients with service referrals, and provide direct assistance in connecting clients to services, and needed resources to continue to succeed once family preservation has ended. Services are to be available 24 hours a day, seven days a week. The service will take place inside the family's home and are to be based upon the family's schedule. The family should be linked to services that have been documented in the CCDCFS "Case Plan" and those services identified as part of the family preservation/ family focus initial assessment. The services/resources provided should be within the community that the family resides whenever possible. If services are not within the community, they should be within 15 miles of the family home. Initial contact or "face to face" visits should be made per program requirements.

B. Child and Family Focus/ Family Preservation Categories:

1. Intensive In-Home Services: May be designated as "Emergency" or "Non-Emergency" referrals. Families must be in crisis and rated as moderate to high risk on CCDCFS risk assessment tool. Intensive in-home services will be a component of the family's safety plan, with the goal of ensuring the safety of the child and maintaining the family as a unit.

The service duration is ninety (90) consecutive days starting from the date of initial contact with the family and a maximum of fifty (50) service hours. Provider Agency workers must be available to provide ten (10) hours of face- to- face contact during the first week of involvement. Total time per family will vary, however, service intensity is often greatest during the first week.

The goals of the service are to immediately intervene to reduce the risk of abuse and/or neglect to the child, de-escalate the crisis in the family, help the family develop problem- solving skills, facilitate improved family functioning through the provision of hands-on concrete services coupled with therapeutic interventions during the period of family crisis, and facilitate more effective utilization of community resources by the family in order to keep the family intact.

2. Family In Need Of Services: These are "Non-Emergency" referrals. Families are in crisis but child(ren) are not rated as a "Dependent" due to the lack of adequate parental care. Parent/Caretakers are usually overwhelmed with providing for the child's basic needs.

The service duration is ninety (90) consecutive days starting from the date of initial contact with the family and a maximum of thirty (30) service hours. Provider Agency workers must be available to provide five (5) hours of face- to- face contact during the first week of involvement. Total time per family will vary; however, service intensity is often greatest during the first week.

The goals of the service are to provide immediate intervention to reduce the risk of a child's removal from the home, assist the family in development of problem-solving and coping skills, and facilitate more effective utilization of community resources by the parent in order to keep the family intact.

3. Parent-Teen Conflict Services: May be designated as “Emergency” or “Non- Emergency” referrals. The primary focus of this service category includes families coming to the attention of CCDCFS due to parent/teen conflict that cannot be resolved without professional assistance. It also includes situations in which the teen is already out of the home or at imminent risk of leaving and the family wants to remain intact. In a typical parent-teen conflict referral, the teen is 13 years old or older, and may be unruly, delinquent, aggressive or violent, gang involved and a possible runaway. Typically, the teen has experienced problems with learning or school under-achievement, poor interpersonal relations, unstructured extracurricular time, and/or abusive behavior in family or peer relationships. The teen may be abusing drugs and alcohol, but has not reached the threshold for primary treatment for substance abuse. The family may be chaotic and unable to cope appropriately with problems. Parents may be at the point of threatening to leave the teen at the agency due to unruly behavior.

The service duration is ninety (90) consecutive days starting from the date of initial contact with the family and a maximum of forty (40) service hours. Provider Agency workers must be available to provide five (5) hours of face-to-face contact during the first week of involvement. Total time per family will vary, however, service intensity is often greatest during the first week.

The goals of the service are to de-escalate the crisis in the family, increase the conflict resolution and problem –solving skills of all family members, confront and reduce the violence in the family and facilitate more effective utilization of community resources by the family in order to keep the family intact.

4. Reunification Services: These are typically “Non- Emergency” designated referrals. Reunification services are targeted to families who are in the process of having children re-integrated into the family after an out-of-home placement. These services are targeted to families who are in need of help to safely and smoothly re-integrate the child(ren) to the home, but require additional support due to the child’s age and/or behavior, parent’s behavior and/or emotional health, length of the child’s out of home placement, or custodian’s unfamiliarity with the child’s needs and how to meet those needs.

The service duration is one hundred twenty (120) consecutive days starting from the date of initial contact with the family and a maximum of fifty (50) service hours. Provider Agency workers must be available to provide five (5) hours of face-to-face contact during the first week of involvement. Total time per family will vary, however, service intensity is often greatest after the child(ren) have returned home.

The goals of the service are to safely re-integrate the child(ren) back into the home as well as maintaining the reunified family, facilitation of increased parenting skills to help parents apply the knowledge they have received, and facilitate more effective utilization of community resources by the parent in order to keep the family intact.

5. Resource Family Support: May be designated “Emergency” or “Non-Emergency” referrals. Resource families are in need of supportive assistance in dealing with children in their care who are demonstrating behaviors which they are unable to adequately address. This service is to resolve issues jeopardizing the child’s placement to prevent removal and maintain the child intact in the foster family setting. This service is also for those families needing support with the integration of an adoptive child into the family.

The service duration is ninety (90) consecutive days starting from the date of initial contact with the family and a maximum of thirty (30) service hours. Provider Agency workers must be available to provide five (5) hours of face-to-face contact during the first week of involvement. Total time per family will vary; however, service intensity is often greatest during the first week.

The goals of the service are to provide immediate intervention to reduce the risk of a child’s removal from placement, assist the family in development of problem-solving and coping skills, to facilitate more effective utilization of community resources by the caregiver in order to keep the placement intact.

This Closing Summary should identify accomplished goals or reasons why the goals were not accomplished as well as community based services (and their identifying information) that have been put in place. The Closing Summary must contain recommendations to assist the family after services have terminated. The Closing Summary will also identify behaviorally observable changes, if any, made by the family members as a result of the intervention and to link those changes to increased safety/well-being of the children.
